Dave —

I was an oligarch last year; then I decided democratic communism was the only solution. Now I have reverted to believing in the rule of the able, and you are my choice for the ablest of the capable; Duke could possibly take one of us, but both of us may rock some foundations. Two drunken, anarchist, atheistic maniacs in one room! Good! and at a Methodist University.

Resavad

Dear David,

I could never write all I wanted to say to you. In the last three years we've said so much.

First, I will tell you what you have meant to me as an athlete. The many times I have waited for you to come off the field after a football game, I have wanted to tell you how proud I was of you. I hope I have expressed it in many little ways. This is the fourth year I have watched you run track and you have ran faster every year. This is something you won't leave behind at Enka. I am looking forward to coming to the track meets at Duke. I can sincerely say without prejudice that you have contributed a lot to Enka in athletics.

Next, I will tell you what you have meant to me as my boyfriend. My years at Enka wouldn't have meant near as much without you to take me to almost every school function. I have always thought I was dating the best boy at Enka and I will continue to think that the rest of my life.

You know how I feel about you and when you tell me you care more about me that any girl you are dating, I can't believe I am lucky enough to be the one. We have shared so many things in the last three years. You have told me your troubles and I have told you mine. This has meant so much to me. It has made my high school days a very happy memory.

I am looking forward to our years at Duke and W.C. and the years to come with much pleasure.

I love you,
Linda

County Administration

T. C. Roberson
Superintendent of County Schools

R. A. Tomberlin

Randall Duckett
High School Supervisor

The County School Committee is composed of: (seated) J. J. Northcott, Chairman; J. M. Cauble; Mrs. Ben W. Davis; C. H. Roberts; (standing) T. C. Roberson, Superintendent; Charles C. Bell, Vice-Chairman; Lawrence C. Stoker, Attorney.

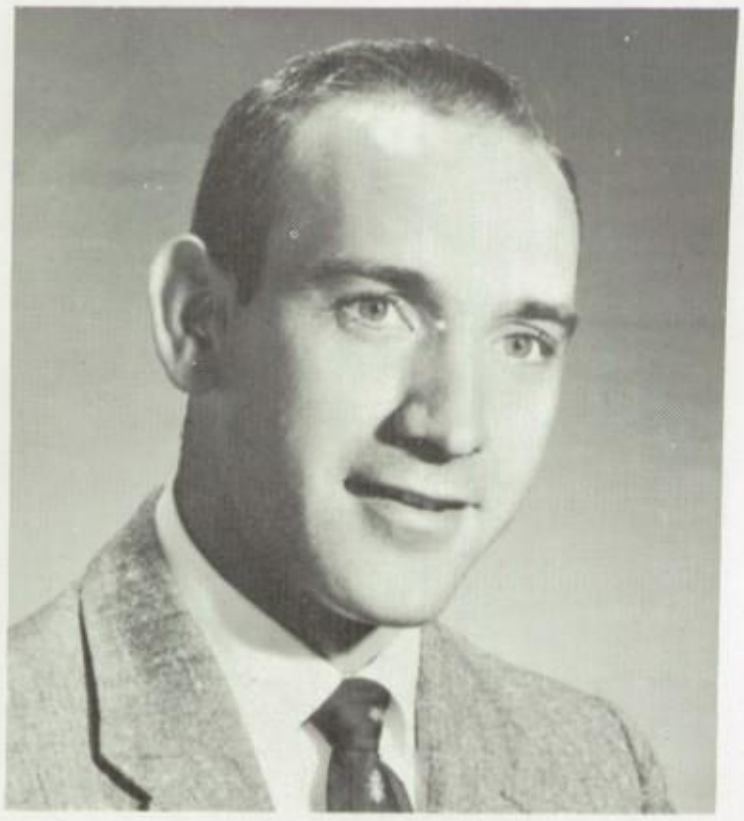
The District 5 Enka High School Committee is composed of: (seated, l-r) Phil McKinney, secretary; Tom Mallonee, Chairman; W. H. Stevens; (standing) Tom Tweed, Vice-Chairman; H. M. Tomberlin, Principal; Jack London.

The teaching profession occupies a position of public trust involving not only the individual teacher's personal conduct, but also the interaction of the school and the community. Education is most effective when these many relationships operated in a friendly, cooperative, and constructive manner.

Principal

Many times during the school year, there are people to whom we turn for help in various situations. Fortunately, we have someone who is both willing and able to help with our problems and who instills in us a sense of responsibility and challenge as Mr. Tomberlin does. He has been very concerned about the education we are receiving. We students--in all the many classifications we fit--have every opportunity to pursue all that our capabilities will permit to train us for our place in the future. Mr. Tomberlin has helped make possible for us the latest techniques and up-to-date educational methods in our school.

District Administration



Our progress as a nation can be no swifter than our progress in education. Our requirements for world leadership, our hopes for economic growth and the demands of citizenship itself in an era such as this all require the maximum development of every young American's capacity.

Mr. H. W. Tomberlin
Enka High School
Enka, North Carolina

Dear Mr. Tomberlin:

On behalf of the 3M Company, it gives me great pleasure to inform you that your school has been selected to receive a 3M/AGE award of visual communications equipment.

All of us wish to extend to you and your faculty our sincere congratulations. Your school was selected first by your local selection committee and then by a national selection committee of prominent educators as one of 500 schools across the country to receive a 3M equipment grant.

The task of these committees was not an easy one. More than 14,000 fine proposals were submitted for consideration. Many fine institutions with excellent proposals had to be eliminated. It is a great reflection of your resourcefulness and demonstrated interest in improved classroom communication that yours was selected among so many worthy candidates.

Your comprehensive and professional proposal has greatly impressed all of us and has reinforced the faith and confidence that we have long held in the teachers of America. We are more confident than ever before that the education of our youth is in very good hands indeed.

Again, I wish to congratulate you on a job well done. We hope that the great you are receiving will help you do so even more effective job of bringing information to and stimulating the imaginations of our young people. And we hope that you will let us know how your proposal "comes to life" in the classroom.

Cordially,

Bert D. Cross
President

Office Assistants

A number of dependable and efficient young people at Enka are in charge of maintaining an orderly office for the school. They greatly facilitate the execution of school business through eager and cooperative assistance.

Our school couldn't do without Mrs. Steele, the school secretary, who keeps the office running smoothly.

Terry, Louise, and Joe check absences sent in by the classes.

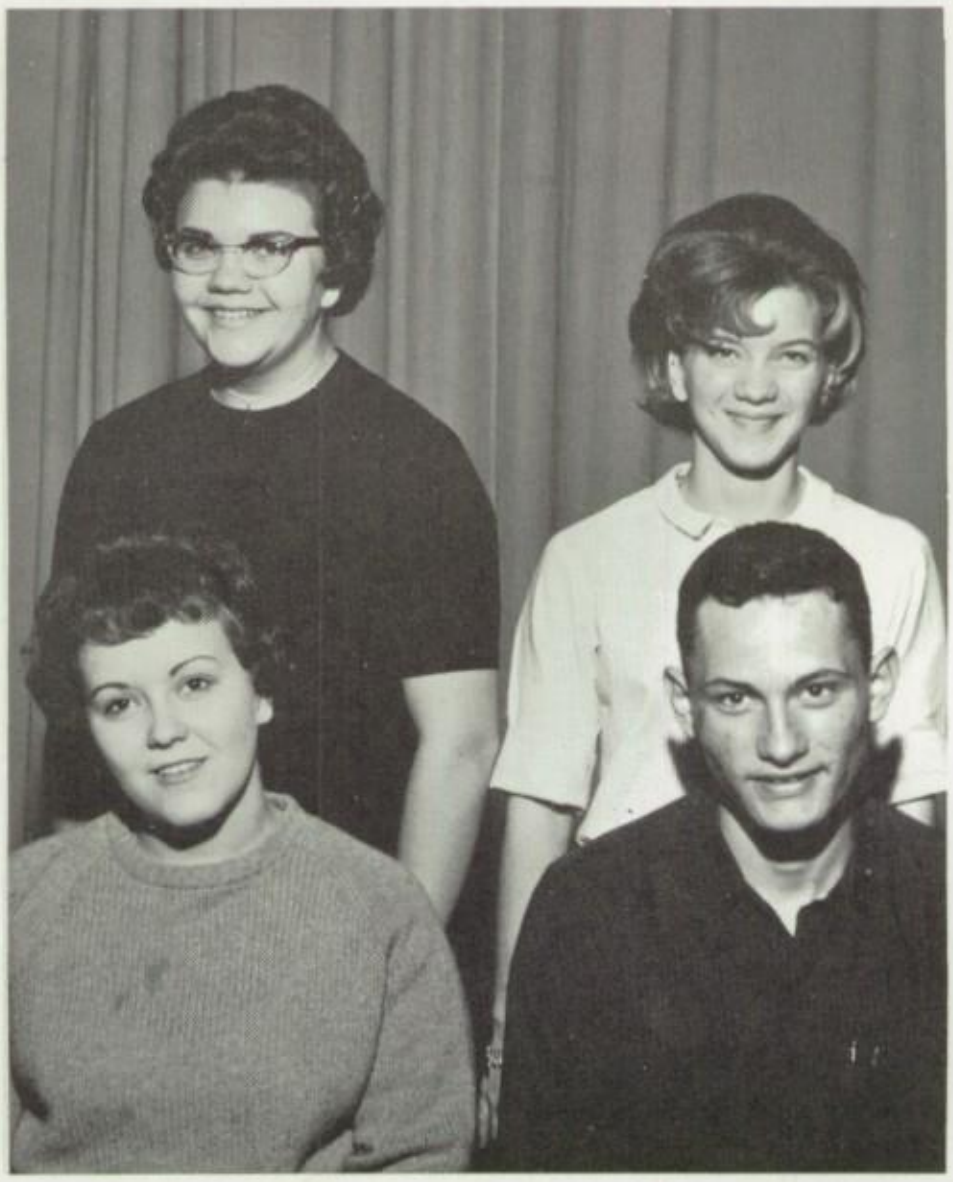
Dramatics Club



The National Thespian League, better known as the Dramatics Club, is a newly organized club at Enka. The students have long felt the need for a creative outlet for their after school hours and energies. No club until this time has made any effort to occupy the talents of those interested in the age-old profession of entertainment--for those interested in art--set design and construction--advertising and publicity--costuming--and performing. The National Thespian League hopes to fill these desires.

Bridges

Kathy Howell, Miss Harrell, sponsor, and Larry Sluder, editor, check the articles written for Bridges.

Publications at Enka are joined by a new member this year. Bridges, our new literary magazine, is the first of its kind in Buncombe County and one of few in North Carolina. Under the editorship of Larry Sluder and sponsorship of Miss Laura Harrell, the magazine emerges as an outstanding example of high school creative endeavor. Bridges is composed of short stories, essays, poetry, reviews, and original art work, all composed by Enka students. We welcome Bridges to Enka High and wish for it a successful future.

Johnny, Diane, and Bill plan an article.

Curriculum

English

Effective communication with others is the most essential ability we possess. Communication may take two forms: written and spoken. Through the study of English, we learn to improve both forms. The English Department at Enka enables students to learn the vocabulary needed, the correct forms of language, in speech and in composition.

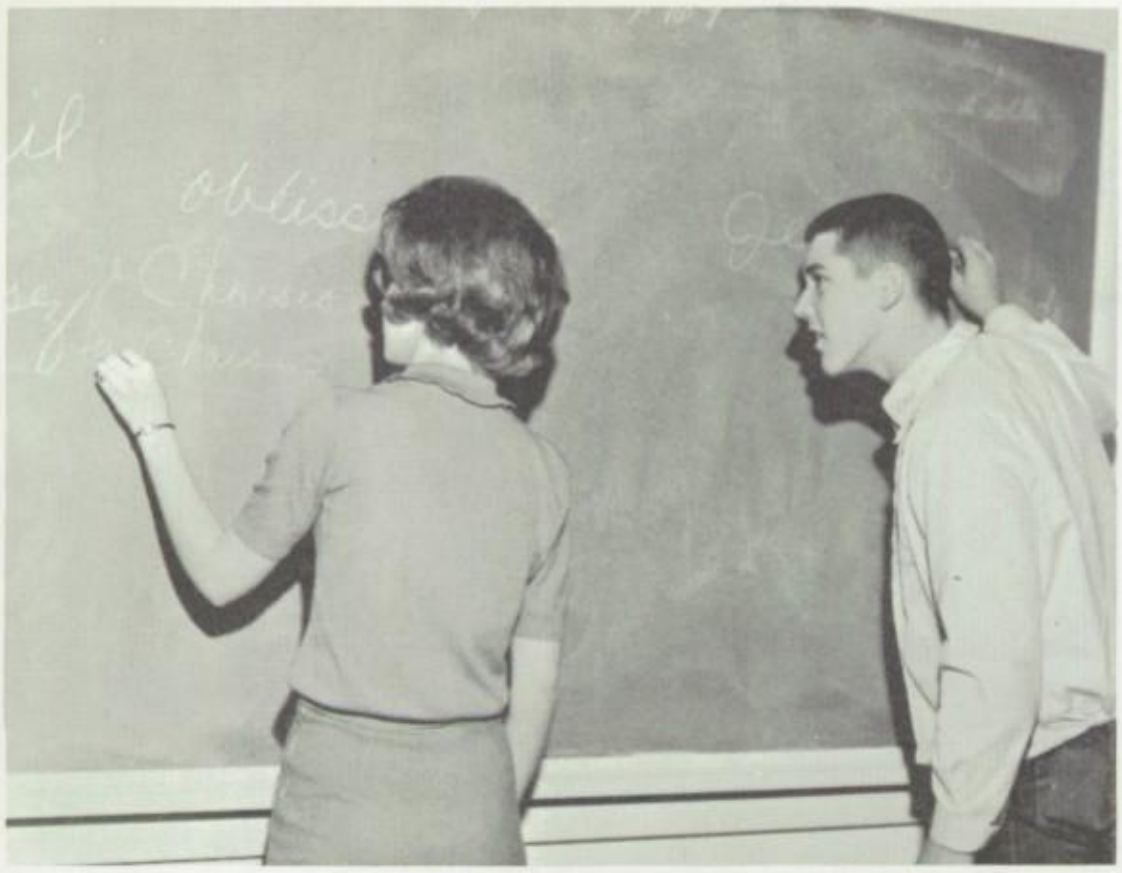
Appreciation of literature is encouraged, and students learn to understand themselves and others in a more complete manner. In the correlated English courses at Enka, we grow ever more capable of complete and effective self-expression.

Instruction in reading is given by Mr. Starnes. The reading class is a new addition to the English Department.

Randy tries to explain Aristotle's theory of "place" to his other classmates.

Miriam, Janice, Diane, and Henry observe a bulletin board on Dicken's "Great Expectations."

Languages



Linda and Pat write French sentences on the board, for the class.

Three foreign languages are offered at Enka. These are Latin, French, and Spanish. Latin, the classical tongue, helps students to better understand one of the greatest cultures the world has known. Study of French and Spanish, two contemporary languages, promotes understanding between members of various nations being drawn ever closer together in today's world. Understanding and appreciation among students are broadened. Courses are ever improving at Enka, and this year Latin III and French II were offered.

Mickey auctions slaves for the Latin initiation.

Students of the Spanish class listen to Spanish records.

Library

The Library is an important source of information and parallel reading at Enka. Here students compile information, complete assignments, and learn. A number of new books have been added to circulation this year, increasing the effectiveness of the library. Students are able to use the facilities of the library at night, and thus have the added advantage of a source of learning which is convenient and comprehensive.

Books seem to come in all at once for library assistants.

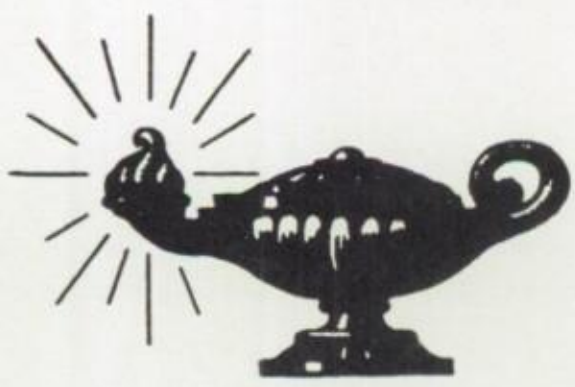
Library assistants file the card catalogue.

Glenda, Linda, and Terry use the library facilities for many purposes.

Guidance

Guidance at Enka means guidance in education, in job choice, and in learning in high school. The Guidance Department under the direction of Mrs. Warren and Mrs. Rudisill, makes available brochures and bulletins of colleges, employers, and technical schools. It is an integral part of the coordination of school activities and objectives.

Mrs. Rudisill helps Kaye and Charles fill out College Board Entrances.



Seniors naturally come to the Guidance Room for help. Mrs. Warren discusses the Morehead Scholarship Fund with Mike and Roberts.

Social Studies

Mrs. Rhinehart's U. S. History class study about our government.

Our heritage as a nation can be better understood and appreciated through the study of the social sciences, and at Enka, opportunity abounds. By learning about our world, and eventually, our nation, students develop a more acute awareness of the cultures and customs which combined to make the world what it is at the present time. Current history is stressed, and students become appreciative of the ever-changing state of the world.

Libby and Gail construct a medieval manor by using oatmeal boxes, wax paper rolls, soap boxes, cardboard, flour, salt, water, paint, glue...

Linda points out part of Gaul, conquered by Caesar.

Members of Mr. Young's Biology class observe as Brenda disects a carp.

Members of Mr. Morrell's chemistry class look on as Rosemary and Gary demonstrate an experiment with diluted hydrocholoric acid.

Science

Science at Enka assumes forms which fulfill needs of students. Courses include chemistry, physics, biology, earth science, general science, and senior science. In these classes students learn the basic facts, and later apply these fundamentals in their personal conclusions and discoveries. Through the laboratories at Enka, science becomes a living subject, and students enjoy the learning process. The study of both natural and physical science becomes increasingly important today, and Enka has much to offer to the young scientist.

Mrs. Warren's Physics class prepare to write up the analysis of Charles Arthur's experiment.

Kay and Eddie weigh chemical compounds in preparation for an experiment.

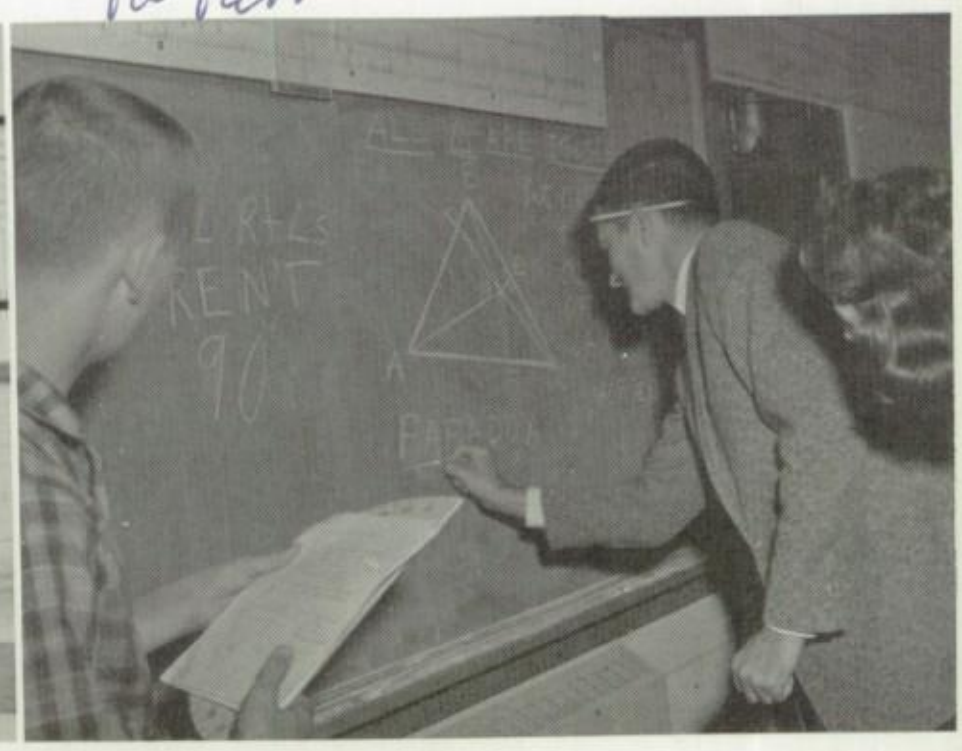
Mathematics

David and Gary choose a book on modern day mathematics.

Those at Enka who come in contact with the Math Department are aware of vast changes in this field. The modern approach is stressed, and students often find themselves more interested. A course in combined plane and solid geometry, and a course combining trigonometry, calculus, and analytical geometry are among the recently introduced studies. Through mathematics we learn to reason more clearly, and to think in a more orderly manner.

David,
You are one of the best math students that I have ever taught. Your potential is tremendous. I'll be looking for great things from you in the future. you are also a fine lad and you will represent Enka High well.
P. Deason

Paul, Lynn, Donald, and Mary Francis discuss their project in advanced geometry.



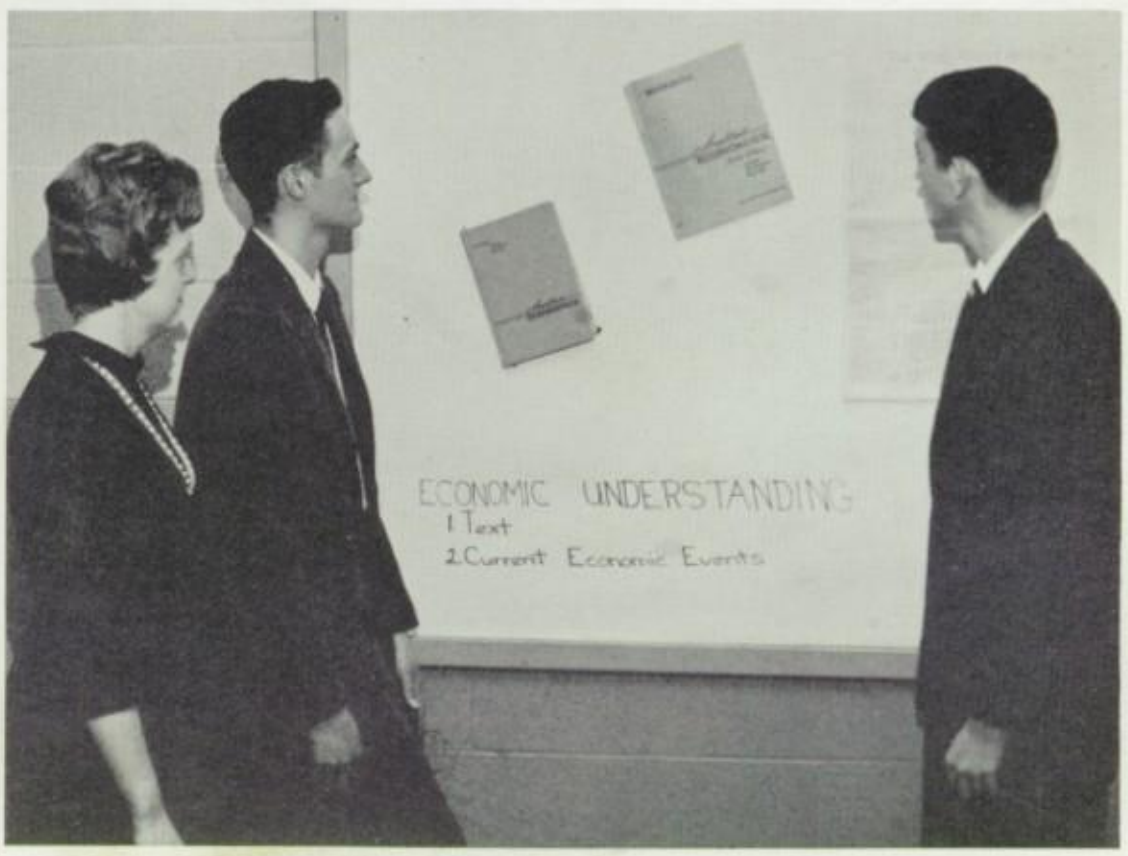
Mr. Deason explains modern day math to some of his students.

Business Education

Business in the future depends on the young people of today, and the young people prepare themselves through business education. Here they learn the fundamentals of the business world: the methods, the means, the management which will be used in their careers. Typing, shorthand, use of machines and equipment, all of these are components which develop the capable business leader of tomorrow, and all of these may be learned in Enka's Business Department.

Students observe and demonstrate as Diana states the problem.

Students take notes as Betty Jane dictates.



Susan, Leroy, and Ronnie observe their newly finished bulletin board.

Home Economics

Intriguing aromas often emerge from the Home Economics Department at Enka. At other times the whir of sewing machines may be heard. Then we know that young ladies at Enka are gaining skills important to them as homemakers at future times. In this course, girls learn to cook, sew, and efficiently run a home, jobs which require training as do any other vocations. Under the capable direction of home economics teachers, the girls learn to be efficient, economical, and capable.

Glenda and Janet prepare coffee for a break.

Linda and Beth try to get the sleeve sewed in their dress before the bell rings.

Jean, Linda, Sandra, and Lennie make yeast bread.

Industrial Art members study a mounted truck motor.

Industrial Art Boys help put in new lockers for the new wing.

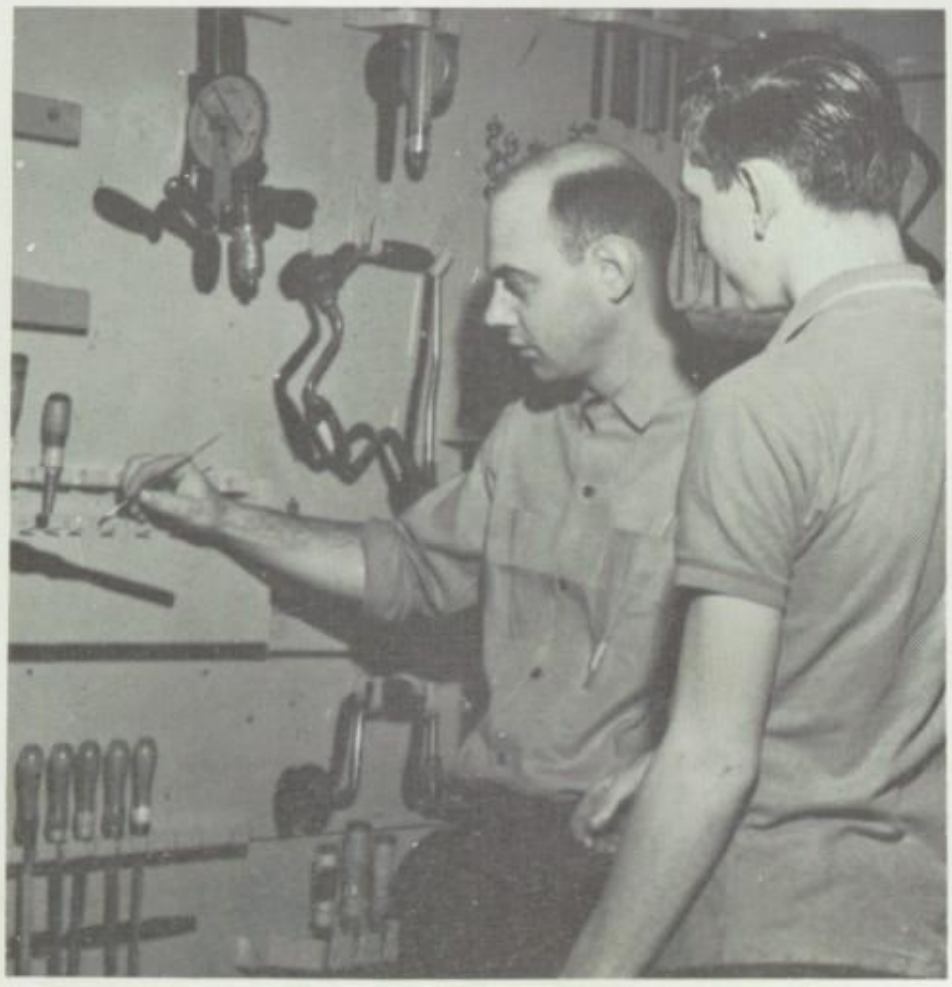
Boys working in the shop learn to weld.

Mr. Duckett paints a tool box
as a student observes.



Industrial Arts

Industry will draw many aspiring young men from the resources of the Industrial Arts Department of Enka High School. For here, in actual practice, students acquire first-hand experience at industrial skills. Training is offered in use of tools, machines, and materials.

Members of the Agriculture Department landscape for the new wing.

Agriculture students practice the identification of tools for a county contest.

Agriculture

Agriculture is an everchanging field of study, and young agriculturalists at Enka keep abreast of latest methods and techniques through the Agriculture Department of our school. Agriculture combines many of the courses included in the curriculum, among these are science, business management, and human relations. Experience is combined with technical knowledge to produce knowledgeable young farmers.

Agriculture students refinish their farm truck.

Driver Training

Mr. Penland explains the parts of a car to a student.

With professional driver training a requirement for a license in our state, students find it convenient to take advantage of this course at Enka. Skill and coordination are developed, and a basic knowledge of automobile mechanics is imparted. The roads are safer because of a well planned driver instruction course.

Fill up for instruction with Mr. Penland in Drivers Training.

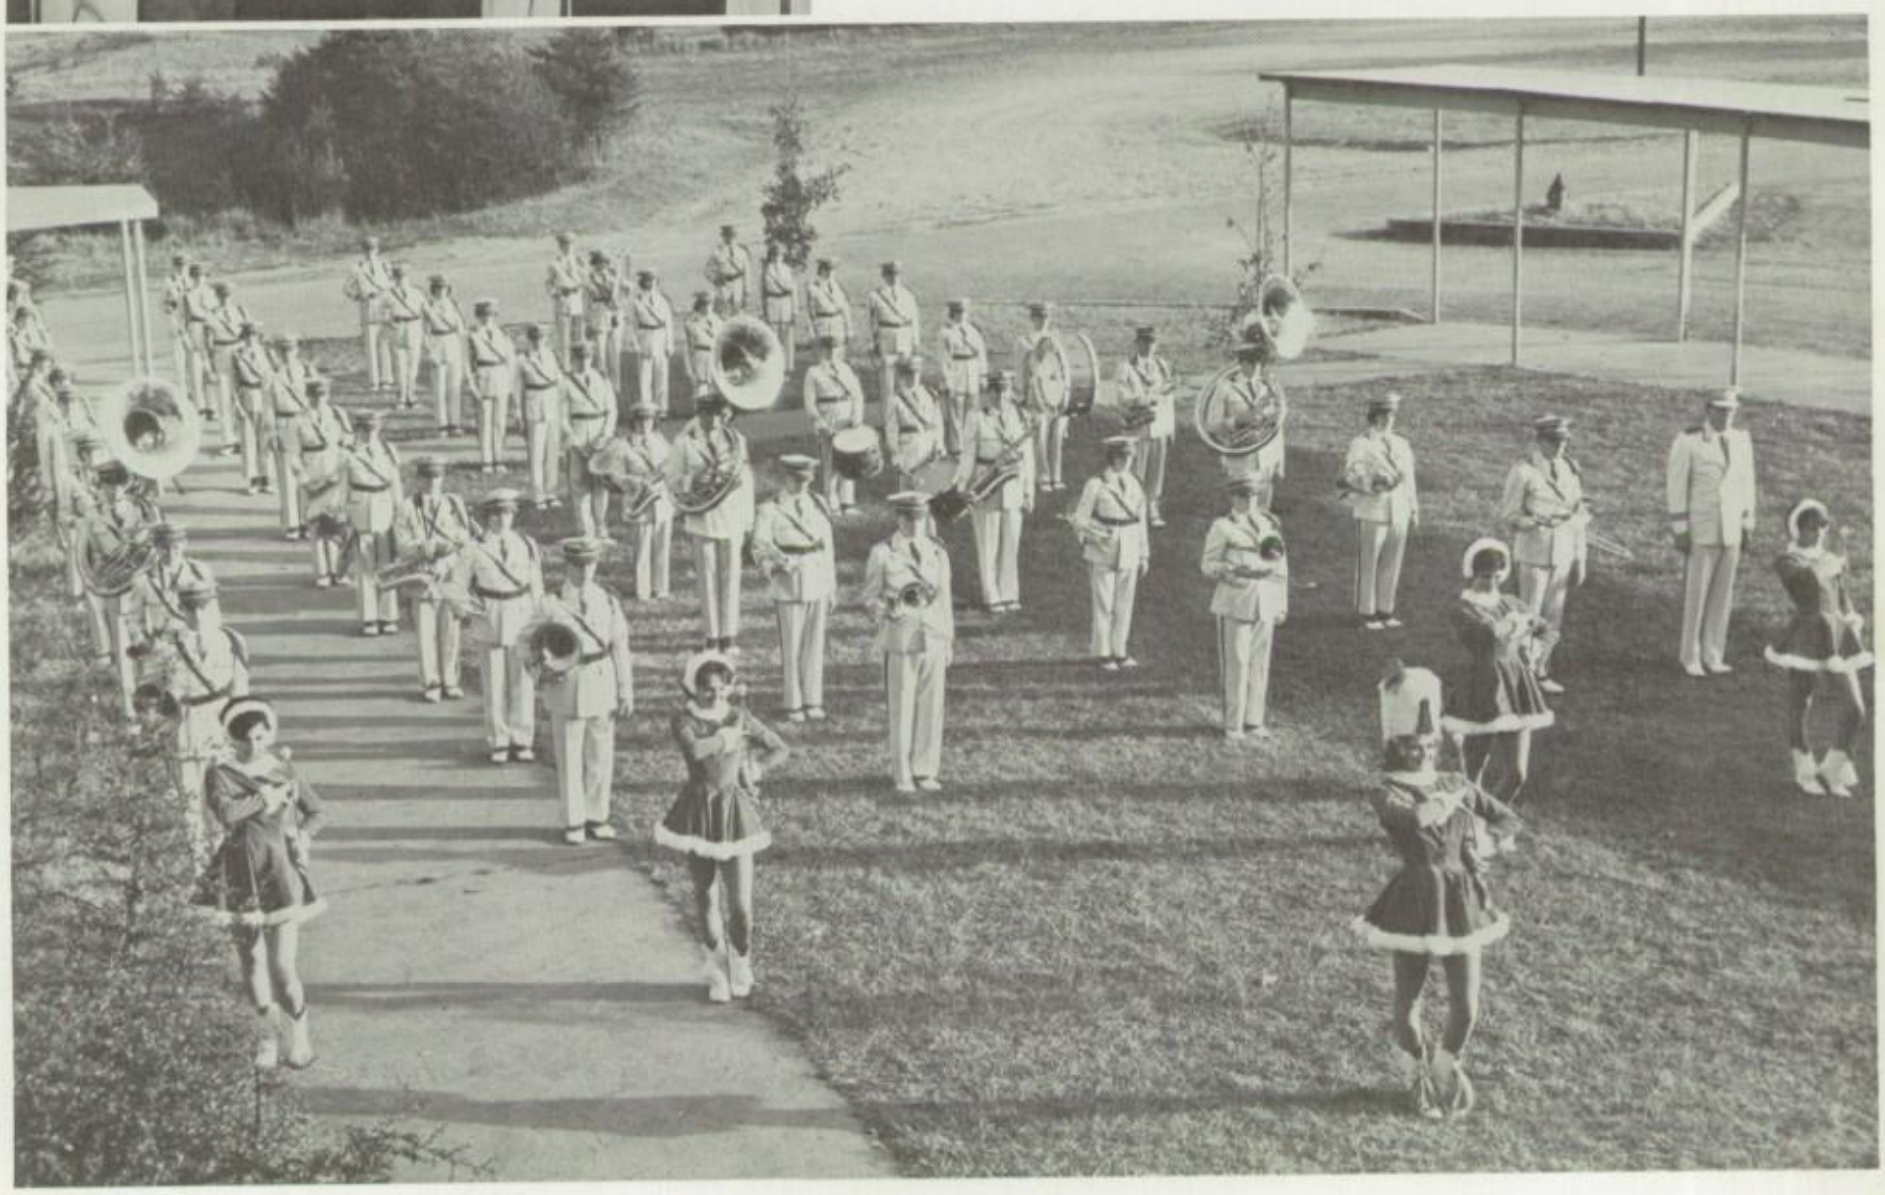
Part of Drivers Training is learning to park a car.

Band

This year the Enka High Band has had a busy schedule under the direction of Mr. Ralph Middleton. It has participated in all pep rallies and football games. It marched at the Labor Day parades in Asheville and Hendersonville, the Veterans Day Parade, and the Christmas Parade in Asheville. The highlight of the fall was participating in the Southeastern Marching Contest at Bristol. This spring the band participated in the State Contest Festival at Marion. It also played a series of concerts at surrounding schools. This successful school year was ended by the annual Spring Concert at the school.

Officers: Judy Stubbs, Vice-President; Cecil Edmonds, Secretary-Treasurer; Ann Peebles, President.

The Enka-Candler Business Association generously donated $550 to the band uniform fund. Left to right: Judy Stubbs, Mr. Gene Lamb, president of the association; Mr. Harold Peebles, Treasurer; Mr. H. M. Tomberlin; Ann Peebles; Mr. Ralph Middleton; Cecil Edmonds.



The band puts its best foot forward as they prepare to march in their appropriate dress.

The band purchased several rare instruments this year enabling the band to compete with the better bands of the state. The players of these instruments are, first row: Mary Long, baritone saxophone; Dara Llewellyn, oboe; Judy Miller, French horn; Diane Tweed, French horn. Second row: Rex Revis, bass clarinet; Judy Wynes, bass clarinet; Sharon Peebles, alto clarinet; Sally Clark, bassoon.

The percussion section is composed of Robert Blackwell, Frank Davidson, Harold Young, Phil Sloan, Larry Stockton, David Gayheart.

Ten band members participated in the All-State Band at Cullowhee. Seated are the members of the Workshop Band: Nancy Hall, Ann Peebles, Diane Tweed, David Fisher, Paul Iarussi, Jimmy Singleton. Members of the Clinic Band are standing: Sharon Peebles, Bill Gudger, Randy Sluder, Kenneth Singleton.

Diversified Occupation

Diversified Occupation enables students to combine academic training with technical experience. While still completing their high school careers, they are able to obtain a preview of their future careers in business and in industry.

Vivian Herren aids Dr. Cole in dentistry.

Dickie Cagle polishes furniture for a new showing at Kent Mobile Homes.

James Harris checks the engine at the Esso Station.

Physical Education

"A trained mind in a strong body" might well be applicable to the typical student at Enka. Through physical education, we learn about our physical beings, and how to take proper care of ourselves. Sportsmanship and fair play are emphasized, and through this department, we learn to live in harmony with those about us.

Neil learns to rebound the ball as part of the physical education program.

Part of physical education is learning to play basketball.

All together now, girls, one, two, three!

Sports at Enka High School begin with sportsmanship among the players as well as the students. The teams work diligently to uphold our school's standards and spirit. Sports make up the major part of our school's extra curricular activities and competition.

Each of the events in the sports program brings different competition to our school. The students support the boys and girls as they go out on the field or floor to work diligently and play strongly for a clean game and compete for another victory for Enka High School.

....A Message to the Graduate
From American Enka

The importance of education has never been stressed more than in this decade. This is so because we as a nation will progress in relationship to the amount of education our young people receive.

American Enka urges you to continue your education at the college level and invites you to consider a career in the man-made fiber-textile industry.

From its beginning, textiles triggered the American Industrial Revolution. Although one of the oldest American industries, rich in heritage and tradition, it is in the forefront of progress.

The industry is vigorous and more alive than ever. Why? Here are some of the reasons:

. The industry's belief in itself, expressed in terms of investments in new and modern equipment.

. Increasingly better machinery and production techniques.

. Greater diversity in production, and better end products.

. Increased research and development.

. Stronger financial backing.

. Better trained management personnel.

ALL OF THESE add up to a modern, progressive industry that is playing a vital role in the life of the nation.

In many fields of study -- engineering, chemistry, physics, textile manufacturing, designing, styling, finance, accounting, transportation, research, sales, merchandise and marketing -- the industry offers many challenging and rewarding opportunities.

Your future in our industry is dependent on -- and limited only to your knowledge, ability, and energy!

David,

It really enjoyed knowing you these past four years. You've made a record you can really be proud of. I know you'll enjoy Duke - it only wish it could be there too. Don't let Larry influence you too much - keep on having fun. Best of luck always,.

Diane

David,

This year has been a true pleasure and truely gratifying experience. I hope that you and L.L.S. have fun at "Dooque" and can make it over to Chapel Hill for a little H-raising once in a while.

Steve

Dear Dave,

This is sort of an awkward time to be writing in your annual. I really don't know what to say or how to say it.

I could never really tell you how much you have meant to me this past year. Our relationship has been one of tears and happiness. I'm glad there was more happiness than tears. We've shared many precious moments together and I'll always remember them and all of our many wonderful times.

I have told you many times before I loved you

David,

I hope that we are still friends even though I have told on you a few times. Ah, well, girls must talk. You noticed I didn't say gossip. Stay like you are David and you will own the world some day. Good luck at Duke and W.C. See you with my room mate next year.

Love,
Candy

and I meant it with all my heart. I don't really know what is happening now I'll probably wake up and realize it all to late. I wish it could have been some other way.

I loved you Dave and I hope you believe that. I hope you loved me to. I don't want you to forget me because I'll never forget you. It is awfully hard to forget a year of wonderful times. Think about me sometime because I know Ill be thinking of you. I've thought about you every minute since this happened. maybe every thing will turn out for the best but I doubt if it will for me. It seems I'm always doing the wrong thing. I don't think this time will be any exception.

I hope you won't hate me for what has happened I didn't want it to be this way any more than you did. Please believe that. If you can and want to come and see me again. I want you to. I loved you Dave and I think I still do but I'm just stupid and I can't realize it.

I love you,
Phyllis

NEVER FORGET I WON'T

David,

Just being in English class you this year has been a ball. I know how much you like Mrs. Kramer and how you did everything to help her. Best of luck next year, and whatever you do after. May happiness and success be yours and may your every dream come true.

Always a friend,
Ann
